INTRODUCTION

The eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series will return for its 12th season with an increased championship purse, new teams and an elevated playoff format to conclude an 18-race schedule.

“After more than a decade of iRacing competition, the 2021 season is poised to further position the eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series as one of the most immersive and competitive gaming leagues,” said Tim Clark, senior vice president and chief digital officer, NASCAR. “Last year was monumental for esports, and we’re committed to elevating NASCAR’s presence in the space, delivering more entertainment for fans and connecting the sport with new audiences.”

The eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series season will kick off at the virtual Daytona International Speedway on Feb. 8 at 9 p.m. ET on eNASCAR.com. Teams will compete for the largest purse in series history, totaling $330,000.

“Year after year, the eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series has grown bigger and bigger, to the point where we crowned our first $100,000 champion last year,” said iRacing president Tony Gardner. “We’re excited to continue raising the bar in 2021 with new drivers, teams, and tracks, an even larger purse, and a new playoff format, and we can’t wait to get the season started at Daytona!”

The 2020 eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series season went down to the wire, with Nick Ottinger claiming the series’ first $100,000 championship in William Byron eSports’ first year in the series. Ottinger and nearly 30 other drivers return from last season. An already marquee group of returning teams welcomes the virtual debut of 23XI, the new NASCAR Cup Series team owned by Michael Jordan and Denny Hamlin; McLaren Shadow, the official esports team of McLaren F1; Elliott Sadler Esports, owned by former NASCAR Cup Series veteran Elliott Sadler; and professional esports teams Spacestation Gaming and XSET.

The 40 drivers and 20 teams will take on a challenging schedule that represents the best of NASCAR’s highest level, from the first green flag at Daytona to an epic finale at Texas Motor Speedway, and an All-Star Race featuring the return of former series champions on the three-mile iRacing Superspeedway. New this season, the playoffs will expand from eight drivers to 10, with a “win and you’re in” format for drivers in the top 20 in regular season points, before paring down to four drivers for the Texas finale.

2021 SCHEDULE

The eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series, NASCAR's only officially sanctioned eSport series, will welcome multiple new tracks to its 2021 schedule. Unveiled today, the new calendar will feature 18 events, led by the traditional season opener at Daytona International Speedway in February and capped off with a championship race at Texas Motor Speedway on October 12. The series' 40 drivers and 20 teams will chase a $330,000 prize pool, with $100,000 of that going to the driver's champion.

A majority of races will remain on the series' traditional Tuesday night, but both season-opening races at Daytona will run on Mondays. The non-points Clash on February 1 will be fans' first opportunity to see the new 2021 series roster in action, while the points-paying championship itself kicks off a week later. New tracks to the series include Circuit of the Americas (May 18) and Road America (June 29), two marquee road courses that will each host the real-world NASCAR Cup Series for the first time this season.

All races can be seen live on eNASCAR.com and iRacing.com/live, as well as the NASCAR and iRacing Facebook, Twitch, and YouTube channels. All race streams will kick off at 9PM ET/6PM PT.

The full 2021 eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series schedule is as follows*:

February 1: 2021 Clash at Daytona (non-points)
 February 8: Daytona International Speedway
 February 23: Homestead-Miami Speedway
 March 2: Las Vegas Motor Speedway

2021 FREE AGENCY RECAP

After five days of free agency to determine the grid, the 2021 eNASCAR Coca-Cola iRacing Series field is officially set, with the 40 qualified drivers and 20 professional teams aligning to create on-track partnerships for the coming season. An exciting mix of big names heading to new locations, as well as some of last year's biggest stars continuing with their 2020 programs, headline the grid as the series prepares to kick off at Daytona International Speedway in February.

Defending series champion Nick Ottinger will remain with William Byron eSports for his title defense, joining fellow marquee names like Michael Conti (JR Motorsports), Jimmy Mullis (Richmond Raceway Esports), and Garrett Lowe (Wood Brothers Racing) in staying where they were last year. Other notables renewing their previous team relationships include 2019 series champion Zack Novak (Richmond Raceway Esports), inaugural series runner-up Brad Davies (JR Motorsports), and 2020 season finale winner Chris Shearburn (Letarte Esports).

But only two teams will return both of their drivers from last year, meaning a lot of fast veterans will be sporting new colors in 2021. Four-time series champion Ray Alfalla headlines the list at Joe Gibbs Racing, while Bobby Zalski heads to Letarte

Esports and Logan Clampitt joins Ottinger at William Byron eSports. Both Team Dillon Esports and Jim Beaver eSports reloaded for 2021 by bringing in two new veterans, with the former inking Corey Vincent and Taylor Hurst and the latter signing Caine Cook and Michael Guest.

Four new teams join the eNASCAR grid for 2021, and each looked to make a big splash in free agency. McLaren Shadow headlines the list with 2019 regular season champion Blake Reynolds and three-time series race winner Allen Boes, while XSET landed 2017 champion Ryan Luza and Casey Kirwan, Space Station Gaming will pair up veteran Malik Ray with rookie Vicente Salas, and Elliott Sadler eSports teams up third-year driver Ashton Crowder with rookie Garrett Manes.

Speaking of rookies, the 2021 grid includes 11 of them, led by 2020 Pro Series champion Isaac Gann. He'll head to Kligerman Sport to pair with veteran Bob Bryant, while runner-up Mitchell deJong joins Keegan Leahy at Denny Hamlin and Michael Jordan's 23XI outfit. The influx of new talent is so widespread that two teams—Williams Esports and Clint Bowyer Racing—will enter the season with rookies occupying both of their race seats.

BIOGRAPHY

Alfalla is the eNASCAR iRacing World Championship's only four-time champion, with back-to-back titles in 2011 and 2012, and two more titles in 2016 and 2018. He has been known as one of the world's best sim racers for more than a decade, and was the first selection in the 2019 Driver Draft. After a return to Pro that winter, he came back stronger in 2020 and returned to the playoffs.

Bowlin made the transition from real-world racing in Unrestricted Mini Sprints to sim racing in 2016, and worked his way up to the Pro Series in 2019. After a runner-up finish there, the Texan put himself in the eNASCAR conversation throughout 2020 with multiple strong performances, and was never really in jeopardy of having to return to the Pro level to make it back in 2021.
